

Catamaran Lady Shelley

Due to the characteristics of the boat and the dock area, the access for wheelchair users is done at low tide. The company provides information about the days which are most suitable. The catamaran can be accessed through a 72cm wide gangway, with an elevation at the beginning and end. In the interior of the catamaran, there is enough room on the ground floor to move around and enjoy the stay without difficulties and with sun protection.

Neptuno Sea Company “Shogun”

Access to the ship is via a metal gangway, whose decline can be adjusted according to the tides. The ramp has an elevation at the beginning and at the end and is followed by a curved ramp with an elevation at the end. Inside there are a few steps and access to a sun-protected area. There is a bathroom marked as accessible, with a more than 0.80m wide door that opens to the outside and a bevelled doorstep of 8cm. There is no sink inside and the toilet has fixed grasp bars on both side for support.
